

March 7, 2017

Today, a group of children became very interested when Leah announced that she was going to hang two additional hooks on our bathroom wall for our new classmates Charlotte and Anyia. They gathered in the bathroom and watched while Leah plugged in an extension cord and set up the power drill. Wren held her ears when the drill noise began, but she still wanted to stay and watch. Felix and Colin agreed to help take photos...

After the excitement of the power drill was over, Anyia and Charlotte wanted to learn how to use our class camera. Leah showed them the basics and they were off! Anyia got started by taking photos of her immediate surroundings. She took photos of her feet (which has been a very common first subject among the children in our class), her teachers, and her classmates at play.

Charlotte was anxious to give the camera a try and asked Anyia if she could have a turn. She was an adventurous photographer, taking the camera all around the classroom and down the hallway, and even turning the camera around to take photos of herself.

