

Nature walking and exploring the neighborhood surrounding our school
May 9, 2017

Kahlan: "This is Rosemary!"
Eden: "Maybe it's mint."
Camryn: "No that's not mint!"
Eden: "Maybe it was mint then it grew into not mint."

On today's walk the children took a big interest in observing nature and other curious finds along the way. They theorized about things they had never encountered before, and shared stories and ideas about what they had.

Eden: "Hey what's this green stuff?"
Hank: "Maybe it's a mushroom. Or maybe it's just burned up leaves."

One item with a lot of interest today were sticks found on the sidewalk with a green growth on them. On multiple occasions Eden picked one up and wondered what the growth was...

Eden: "Maybe these are roly-polys!"
Kahlan: "No those are not!"
Eden: "Well they are growing roly-polys."
