

Nest children are often in front of a lens, as it's important for Reggio-inspired educators to use observation & documentation as a pedagogical tool. After four years at The Nest, Adele is keenly aware of our photographic efforts & has recently expressed interest in using the camera feature herself. During an early morning journaling session she asked if she could take some photos. She proudly took shots of her own work, & then of the people around her - including new friends Landon & Juniper.
