

Q-tip Watercolor Paintings

7 September 2016

Continuing on with our mark-making focus, Huck, Josie, Deniz, Tashi, and Eleanor created paintings using green, purple, and black watercolors presented in three tiny bottle caps. The paintbrush offered was a q-tip.

At first, Deniz dipped his q-tip in one of the watercolors and painted delicate lines. He soon decided to dump the paint out of one bottle cap completely and then used the q-tip to move the large puddle around his paper creating many lines. On his second piece of paper, he spilled the watercolors out and swiftly smacked his hand down causing the watercolors to splash across the paper in a beautiful design. Josie and Tashi used their q-tips precisely, carefully dipping and painting lines and swirls on their papers. Huck completed his painting quickly as he dipped his q-tip and swirled all three of the colors around the bottom portion of his paper. Eleanor was interested in talking about what she was painting as she swished her colored q-tip around her paper. She said she was painting a dragon and then a moon.
