

A Gift for C.C.'s New Baby Brother

23 March 2017

We wanted to welcome the newest member of the Kress family, baby Walker, by making a gift for him. C.C., Sinclair, Eleanor, Lucas, and Noble got to work measuring and cutting green yarn, choosing seashells with at least one tiny hole, and (the toughest part) threading yarn through the seashell hole. After much knot-tying, the gift was complete! The children proudly held up their creation.

The children laid out how they wanted the shells to hang down from the stick. Each child remembered which shell(s) he or she had threaded and was very interested in making sure that everyone knew which shell was "theirs." We talked about what it meant to make a gift and how we don't keep it but give it away to make someone feel good. Welcome to the world, baby Kress!
