

Colin took a moment to read by himself in our new quiet space.

A small jumping game started by Hank, Eden, and Wren quickly grew into a complex group cooperation.

Thanks to a thoughtful and productive teacher workday yesterday, our classroom has undergone some exciting changes and additions. The children had a chance to discuss what changes they noticed during a lengthy conversation at morning meeting, and then continued on to explore and play freely in our updated space.

Landon and Colin were immediately intrigued by the provocation set up on our new building platform, and began working together to create a "car roller".

Felix and Sol took time to themselves exploring the back of the room.
