

Rainy day fun with new rain pants!

The children at the Nest love rainy days because they get to jump in puddles. Puddle play is fun until everyone becomes soaking wet and request a change of clothing.

Having to change clothing but wanting to continue to play in the rain is no fun for the children, so Kalei thought of an excellent idea for the children to wear rain pants to protect their clothes from getting wet.

Today the orange room got the chance to test out these new rain pants. They were a success!

Benjamin, Porter, Vell and Nina testing the rain pants with bubble play.

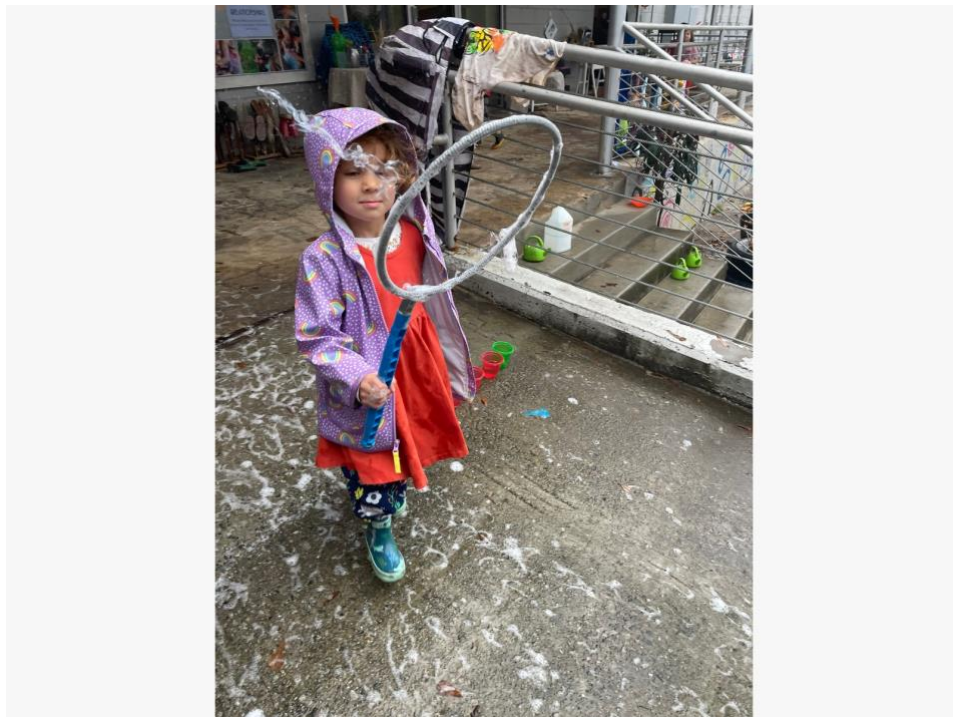

“Try to catch my bubble!” - Porter

“I’m bouncing my bubble like a ball!” - Benjamin.

We noticed Benjamin's brother Sam watching us from the door. Benjamin walks over to show him his bubble.

Vell and her popped bubble.

Feeling brave, the children perform wheelies on the ramp after bubble play. Maddison was nervous in the beginning moving her legs very slowly down the ramp. However, after 3 practice runs, she got the hang of it.

Nina preparing to ride the wheelie. Karter waiting to race Nina.

Away she goes....

"This is fun!" - Irving.

Irving, Porter and Karter line up to wheelie together.
