

Rice on Light Tables... (and then everywhere!) January 28th

Lucas and Evelyn make a soup out of rice and yarn on the projector. The design left behind of the wall resembles something else we've been studying lately... The Moon!

(far left): Robert scoops rice off of the light table and lets it go, noticing that some of it sticks to his hands. (above): After the children throw rice everywhere in an excited frenzy, we decide to take the rice out on the deck where the children enjoyed 30 whole minutes of scooping, pouring, and filling containers.
