

What do we notice on a walk through the neighborhood? 3.28.12

Today the whole class got to go for a walk in the buggy (Darcy was not at school). At yesterday's professional development initiative, I was inspired to pay close attention to what children notice when they are outside. Today the children in the back of the buggy (James and Nate) noticed the hats on some of the babies' heads. Nate kept pointing at the turtles on Henry's hat and then James followed suit. James also noticed almost every car and truck that we passed saying, "Car-car."

We stopped and looked at tree leaves, azaleas, and Henry found a bird on the ground and we watched it fly up into the sky...
