

March 1, 2017

A small group of children worked together on a collaborative piece using oil pastels and watercolor paint on watercolor paper. The Blue Room children are familiar with these mediums and were happy to show our new classmate Charlotte how the oil in the pastels repels the watercolor, creating a beautiful and vibrant mixture of drawing and painting.

Kahlan (above right) and Emerson (below) used materials found on our deck to trace shapes.

